FAVORITISM

As revelations pile up about the recent conduct of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation the more clear it becomes that here is perhaps the most unholiest mess that the administration has managed to get itself into. Compared to the "expediter" who have twisted the RFC around their little fingers, the so-called five percenters of unsavory recollection were small-time operators.

Ordinarily a preponderantly Democratic Senate committee does not go out of its way to blast a Democratic governmental agency. All the more significant, then, are the charges of favoritism and political manipulation that have been lodged against the RFC by Senator Fulbright and the other members of his committee—four Democrats and two Republicans.

This is as sordid a story of the misuse of the people's money as has come to light in years. It shows that loans of dubious validity were made on the basis of friendship, to political supporters, and because the prospective borrower "knew somebody" who could help him.

This is merely one more development which shows how the operations of the big city machines, such as the Pendergast gang in Missouri, have been raised to national proportions. There are no indications that President Truman is outraged by the findings of this committee, or that he will remove any of the culprits from their jobs.

HIGHWAY FIRST AID

In these days of machine efficiency the average person seldom sees a broken-down automobile on the road. So it is something of a surprise to learn that during 1950 on one highway alone 7,145 drivers needed assistance.

These figures are to be found in the annual report of the Jeep Patrol, which has the duty of unraveling traffic blocks on the West Side Elevated Highway in New York City. Of the cars which received the patrol's attention 3,180 had motor troubles, 2,986 had flat tires and the rest were involved in accidents. In 46 cases the drivers actually had abandoned their cars when the patrol arrived on the scene.

What would have happened to traffic if this kind of first aid had not been available can readily be imagined. Under regular conditions motorists do not make the best of time on busy highways during rush hours. Without someone to get stalled cars out of the way the movement of vehicles would often come to a halt and remain halted.

As traffic continues to increase, it may be necessary to inaugurate first aid patrols on all main highways. Garages along main arteries are too few and far between to provide emergency service and not many operate 24 hours a day.

There are indications in Korea that Russia may be running out of Chinamen.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Sept. 25, 1902. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

PENN'S MANOR—Potatoes are moving at 45 and 50 cents per bushel on board cars at the station.

One of the slickest tricks the horse thieves have perpetrated in this vicinity is the one played on ex-Sheriff Purdy, of the Red Lion Inn, at Torresdale. After stealing a horse and harness from George Ebert, of Edgington, the robbers proceeded to the Red Lion and called the landlord out of bed and told him they had broken down and wanted to borrow his store wagon to proceed with their load. The request was granted by the kind-hearted old man and he has been looking for them ever since. He declares he will have to be awake at least an hour the next time and think it over when his supposed neighbors want to borrow another wagon.

FALLSINGTON—A large caravan of gypsies passed through this place on Monday, accompanied by a lot of horses, ponies, dogs, women, children, etc., also a Negro hostler. They had some sumptuous caravans with them and attracted much attention.

YARDLEY—The old wooden bridge that spans the Delaware at Yardley is being overhauled in general at present. The roof is being repaired and a new floor will be laid the length of the structure. B. F. Livezey has charge of the work. The bridge has stood the wear and tear of time very well and the spring floods have taxed it to its utmost.

TULLYTOWN—The store which Harry Moon will occupy in the near future, which building is directly opposite his present place of business, is being greatly improved. The cellar floors have been cemented, a new porch built, a new single roof put on and the interior remodeled.

R. G. Hyde, of Colwyn, Pa., by authority of the borough council, started today upon a contract to place numbers upon all the houses in Bristol in cases where numbers do not exist, and also to revise the numbers where there are errors.

On Tuesday a deposit of $50,000 was made at the Farmers National Bank, at Bristol, by the Trenton and Bristol Street Railway Company. The funds will be used for the payment of construction work on the trolley road between Bristol and Morrisville.

Joseph Maule, aged 84 years, father of John C. Maule, of Bristol, died at his home in Philadelphia, on last Friday, the 19th inst., of general debility. The deceased was a well known member of the Orthodox Society of Friends, and had an extensive circle of acquaintances in Bucks county, and was a public speaker of considerable reputation. He was engaged in the leather business in Philadelphia. For 60 years he occupied the same building in which he served his apprenticeship. The funeral took place on Tuesday, interment being at the Friends' Southwestern grounds in Delaware county.

The cylinder head on the big engine at Steel's mill blew out and cracked the cylinder yesterday morning and striking assistant engineer, James Burns, hurled him a distance of 15 feet. Mr. Burns was not seriously injured, however, and escaped with a few painful contusions on the arm. This is the second time the cylinder head has blown out since the engine was installed about seven years ago. Very fortunately the firm has two smaller engines in reserve for an emergency like this, and during the morning the necessary connections were made and the mill resumed operations in the afternoon at the usual time. During the afternoon, however, the main drive belt broke and operations were again suspended.

The chestnut crop in this part of the State will be very large this year, and according to experts the nuts will be developed and free from worms. Abundant moisture cool nights and slow development tend to make chestnuts fat and sweet and the same weather conditions are favorable to the full development of walnuts, hazel nuts, hickory nuts and butter nuts.

Captain John Gray is the oldest commander in continuous service in the Delaware River Navigation Co., running between Philadelphia and Trenton. He wears the 15 years stripes, and is one of the most popular of men, as well as one of the ablest officers that ever trod the deck. He will undoubtedly have command of the new flyer which the company contemplates building. Any other appointment would seem like sacrilege, so highly esteemed is this capable commander of the "John A. Warner."

The Delaware and Atlantic Telephone and Telegraph Company have two distinct telephone lines in operation in Attleboro. A phone on one line is located in the office of Henry Palmer's lumber yard, and a phone on the other line is located in Rump's mill. They are about 500 yards apart, and should some one in Mr. Palmer's office desire to call up Rump's mill he would first have to call up the central offices in Trenton, Philadelphia and Hulmeville before he could speak to Mr. Rump. This is similar to Attleboro's mail service before the trolley cars began acting as transportation agents for Uncle Sam. A letter posted in the Eden office for either Hulmeville or Langhorne was formerly sent via Philadelphia to reach either of those places.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1950
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—John Carter Vincent is another of the State Department officials who went through the Nationalist Chinese intelligence wringer.

A translation of an intelligence report brought to the U. S. from Chiang Kai-Shek's headquarters on Formosa has been authenticated by both American and Chinese experts. It describes one high State Department official "fervent in his feelings towards the Communists." It also relates details on how Pat Hurley, U. S. Ambassador to China, had Vincent recalled to the U. S. from China.

The State Department supported its Ambassador to China in this fashion: It named Vincent chief of the China Branch of the Far Eastern Affairs section of the Department of State, a position that put him in charge of Hurley's activities. Vincent is currently assigned as U. S. Envoy to Switzerland.

Chinese intelligence agents jotted down details of meetings among Henry Wallace, Owen Lattimore, Vincent and the late Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell, who was boss of the Allied fighting forces in China. The general also hated Chiang Kai-Shek and had to be recalled by Roosevelt.

Chou En-Lai, present Foreign Minister of the Communist Chinese Government, was one of the people Vincent and other State Department aides dealt with in China. In June, 1943 Vincent cabled a report to the State Department. Chiang's intelligence files report, following an interview he had with the Communist official. It quotes Chou En-Lai as follows:

"Japan and Russia will not clash for the time being, but in the future will inevitably fight. Therefore we (the Chinese Communists) welcome American forces to help our guerrillas in North China to prepare for joint opposition against Japan in the future. Communist forces have been dispatched to occupied territory for intense activity. It is hoped that American leaders will adopt positive action, and send an observer to North China."

At the end of the cablegram a note from Vincent was appended. "The Nationalist Government is very fearful of any pro-Communist leanings. Therefore if any observer is sent to North China, his method should be to disparage the Communists as much as possible and be sympathetic to the Nationalist Government. Then the request will be approved."

An American observer was assigned by the State Department to POW-wow with the Communists, and presumably he was one who made a lot of noise about how he hated the Reds. At any rate, Chiang Kai-Shek gave him permission to go, apparently satisfied with his phony anti-Communist attitude.

Following the observer, of course, came tons of American arms and ammunition for the Chinese Communist troops, which was the main idea in the first place.

Chiang's agents must have been all over the place whenever the Americans, out to knife him, got together. One section of the report dealing with Vincent, John Stewart Service, Henry Wallace and others reads:

"During the period when Service was political adviser to General Stilwell, on June 20, 1944, after the arrival of Wallace in Chungking, Service had a secret conference with Stilwell, Owen Lattimore, Vincent and others. On the 23rd of the same month Service rode in Army car No. 2070, passed Kuo-Fu Road, to the office of the Communist Leader at No. 50 Tseng-Chia-Yen. Later Service went in person to Yen-an to see Communist Mao-Tse-Tung."

In the next paragraph or two the report details the contents of documents that both Service and Vincent sent around China and to the U. S. Elsewhere there are details of conversations between Lattimore and Kung P'eng, a Chinese Red whose sister was in the Peiping peace delegation that came to the United Nations. Either Chiang's agents have sharp ears or they used listening devices effectively.

It is interesting to note that Chou En-Lai, presently sending more and more Chinese Communist troops into Korea, was so certain in 1943 that Russia would enter the war against Japan. It is obvious from Vincent's cablegram that the State Department had this information. Yet, it was supposed to be a big diplomatic and military question whether or not Russia would go to war against Japan.

The State Department was helping spread the doubt around Washington at that time, so when U. S. and Soviet officials met at Potsdam the State Department had our negotiators all softened up for a big Soviet touch.

At the moment Japan was ready to call it quits. She had been battered senseless and was about to get a final coup de grace from the atomic bombs. Still and all, with the seed well planted that Russia was needed to lick Japan, we handed over to the Soviet Union as a bribe half of Sakhalin Island, a railroad and a major Chinese port. The Chinese in Chiang's headquarters knew all this was coming. They say so in the intelligence reports. Vincent and other State Department officials may have known also, but if they did they kept it quiet.

Lt. Gen. Ridgway Says U. N. Forces Have Smashed The Red Counter-Offensive

40,000 men, but some of them now are far below that strength.

Ridgway said that the question of whether United Nations forces, in their new punch northward, will cross the 38th Parallel boundary has not entered his mind.

"Just now," he said, "we primarily are interested in the destruction of the enemy."

The general continued: "We are interested in killing as many Chinese and North Korean soldiers as possible and losing as few lives of our soldiers as possible."

"We now have very clearly identified six to seven Chinese army corps of the Fourth Field Army which we know are south of the 38th Parallel—the 50th, 38th, 42nd, 39th, 40th and 66th."

"The 37th Corps has not yet been committed."

Ridgway declared that the 50th Chinese Army Corps was ineffective after "taking a terrific pounding" when it attempted to halt the Allied offensive south of Seoul nearly three weeks ago.

And, the general added, the 38th and 42nd Red China Army Corps also had been "chewed quite a bit" in the Communist counter-offensive that now has been definitely halted.

Ridgway then pictured the Chinese line just before their attack which was launched eight days ago.

"The eastern boundary of the Chinese line," he related, "ran just east of Wonju after a definite eastward shift of Chinese forces prior to the big attack."

"The Chinese attack, with a very powerful potential, was mounted on a twenty mile front."

He declared that the enemy could have placed five of the seven Chinese army corps in South Korea into the attack.

However, he reported that the 39th, 40th and 66th Chinese Army Corps had not been touched.

East of the massed Chinese Communist corps, the Second and Fifth North Korean Corps were deployed, with the Third North Korean Corps echeloned in the rear.

"The Communist attack," said Ridgway, "could have been in great depth and could have been sustained for a long time. But we checked the attack two days ago."

"The attack against Chipyeong, which was very bitterly pressed, ceased at 1700 hours (5 p. m.) February 15th when an armored column of the Fifth Cavalry Regiment reached the defenders."

"Chinese dead were lying all over the place up there. You should have seen the area."

"It was a magnificent performance on the part of the defenders, the American 23rd Regimental combat team and French troops."

"Since then, there has been a very definite effort on the part of the Chinese to disengage on the central front and for the last 36 hours we have had to reach way out aggressively to regain contact."

IS NOW A SSGT.

LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, Va., Feb. 19—James J. Gillespie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gillespie, 509 Washington avenue, Croydon, Pa., has been promoted to the grade of staff sergeant in the U. S. Air Force. SSGT. Gillespie is currently stationed at Langley Air Force Base, Va., serving as an aircraft armorer with the 440th CCTS. He attended Northeast Public high school prior to entering service. SSGT. Gillespie is a veteran of World War II, and saw 17 months of action in the European Theater of Operations.

arisen as to the President's power—and indeed, duty—to do so.

Up until this new proposition came along of "implementing" the Atlantic Pact by sending an American army as part of our contribution under it, the troops we were shipping to Europe were part of a very definite national assignment, the nature of which was cleancut.

The troops we were sending were replacements of the wartime armies, and they were going for the very obvious purpose of occupying Germany and other conquered territory, and of preserving order until the peace treaties were signed.

Occupation troops were sent not merely as part of our own voluntary responsibility, but under the broader requirements of our agreements with our allies in the war—including Russia. Even in the case of the Berlin airlift, where we are sometimes spoken of as having gone on the aggressive, we were after all doing no more than maintaining our communication lines into an area where the formal action of our allies had authorized us to be.

Now note the distinction.

The new troops-for-Europe program has nothing to do with the occupation of Germany. Quite the contrary. It actually is part of a movement which contemplates the re-establishment of Germany as a European power, and her re-armament—contemplates this as a possibility if not yet an accepted part of the plan.

Unlike all previous troop assignments, the new one would no longer be part of the mopping up after the Second World War, but a deliberate and acknowledged preliminary step in the direction of World War III.

Anyone who presents any such fantastic argument as saying that because we have sent occupation troops to Europe as part of our post-war responsibilities there, we therefore have a precedent for sending armies under the offensive-defensive terms of the Atlantic Pact, is trying to fool the public, not help it understand the problem.

eight and five years, accompanied by Mrs. Montague, left Trenton Friday for a motor trip to Florida. The five were en route to Miami and had stopped overnight in Jacksonville.

The body of Mrs. Montague will be flown north this evening. Death occurred at Duval Medical Center shortly after Mrs. Montague was admitted. Mrs. Scheppe is confined to the Duval Center.

Mrs. Montague was born in Drifton, but had resided in Bristol for 43 years. She was a communicant of St. Mark's R. C. Church.

Police charged the driver of the other car involved, Donald Burdges, 21, Jacksonville, with reckless driving and manslaughter.

RAS. The defendant was given $38 in change by the Morrisville man.

District Attorney Willard S. Curtin, who explained to the Court that the defendant has "made good" the $38 to Corti, asked permission to have the bill of indictment charging Carey with drawing a worthless check nolle-prossed with the Court's permission.

"We don't intend to have these 'bad check artists' victims use the criminal courts as a collection agency," said Judge Keller, District Attorney Curtin pointed out that the defendant has been in prison here for some time.

The costs of prosecution will amount to $65 and, because the defendant had only $50, he was remanded back into jail until he can procure the additional $15.

"After he gets to Connecticut we will never see the $15," said Judge Keller. District Attorney Curtin said the defendant has been in Sing Sing Prison, New York, because of similar offenses.

The defendant offered to give a check for the $15, but the Court insisted on "hard cash."

Russia is Hastily Sharpening Satellite Sword

building up is based on western European military and diplomatic intelligence reports. It contrasts with the maximum of 273,500 men provided for in the peace treaties.

The haste with which Russia is sharpening the satellite sword was cited by U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson recently as one of the basic causes for world tension. The United States, Britain and France intend to insist that the question of this rearmament of the satellite states be included on the agenda of the proposed Big Four conference.

Soviet-sponsored intensification of military preparations in Poland, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia is giving rise to increased diplomatic speculation that Russia may be planning to unleash the satellite armies against Yugoslavia this spring.

There was considerable discussion of the possibility of such a move at the recent Paris conference of American envoys from the Soviet bloc countries behind the Iron Curtain.

International News Service Correspondent Richard S. Well reported from Berlin last week that Moscow Politburo member Georgi Malenkov promised on a recent visit to Germany that Russia and the satellites would maintain a three-to-one ratio in manpower over any western European defense army.

The danger that Moscow might resort to drastic action this spring to try to overthrow the defiant regime of Marshal Tito also has been the subject of diplomatic consultations among the American, British and French Governments.

Yugoslavian diplomatic sources in Paris told International News Service there has been a marked increase in provocative incidents along the Bulgarian and Romanian frontiers with Yugoslavia.

These sources said that during recent weeks the provocation tempo has been stepped up to the point where incidents are occurring almost daily.

These usually take the form of efforts to slip Cominform agents into Yugoslavia or to incite the Yugoslavian border guards into skirmishes with the satellite frontier forces.

Tito's intelligence agents also have reported strong Bulgarian troop concentrations between Sofia and the Yugoslavian and Greek borders.

Rumors of satellite and Soviet troop movements in the direction of Yugoslavia have, of course, been prevalent almost every spring and autumn since Tito broke with Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin in the winter of 1947-48.

The Cominform also has stepped up its pressure against Tito's regime to a high pitch of intensity on several occasions without going beyond the precipitation of minor border incidents and attempted sabotage within Yugoslavia.

What is causing the western Allied governments to pay special attention to the situation this year, however, is the manner in which Russia appears to be rushing the expansion of the satellite armies.

This could represent merely Russia's answer to the Atlantic Pact. But General Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty forces, has publicly stated that it will take until the end of 1952 to form in western Europe an Allied army of 100 divisions.

Since Russia is estimated to have 100 Soviet divisions already available for action in Europe, western diplomats do not see the need for rushing the formation of large satellite armies to counteract the Atlantic Pact, especially in view of the consequent drain on the weak economies of the puppet states.

Therefore, it is felt that the western powers must be alert to some other motive for the bayonets which will be blossoming in profusion on the satellite side of Yugoslavia's borders this spring.

Western intelligence reports estimate that ten new divisions have been called to the colors in Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary alone this winter.

These reports indicate that the manpower strength of the satellite armies now is approximately as follows:

Poland, 480,000; Romania, 250,000 to 300,000; Czechoslovakia, 230,000; Bulgaria, 195,000; Hungary, 120,000 to 165,000; Albania, 10,000.

In addition, the militarized force which Russia has created in east Germany out of the ranks of the police is now estimated to total at least 70,000. This force is equipped with tanks, howitzers, anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns.

Nearly all of the satellite armies are under the supervision of Soviet marshals or generals, with Russian officers scattered through the divisions as instructors and advisers.

These armies are being organized on the Soviet military system, with standardization of weapons, service communications and tactical doctrines.

Thus in the event of war, the satellite divisions could be incorporated without difficulty in the Soviet armies.

The satellite air forces are weak, and it is believed that they are being kept so deliberately by Russia. However, a moderate expansion of the Polish and Czechoslovakian air forces is reportedly underway to provide the armies of those countries with some tactical air support of their own.

While the satellite armies are known to suffer from a shortage of mobile equipment, armament production in the puppet states is being stepped up rapidly.

It is estimated that the satellite armored units now have a total of about 2,000 tanks, most of which have been turned over to them by the Russians.

How well these satellite forces would fight in the event of war is considered highly questionable by western diplomats and military experts.

If they were compelled to move against Yugoslavia and the going was comparatively easy, it is thought they probably could be relied upon to fight under the threat of being shot in the back by their Soviet-trained officers or Communist commissars.

However, if they ran up against stiff opposition from the Yugoslavs, would show much spirit.

Likewise, the possibility is foreseen that in a war with the western powers, the satellite troops would desert by the thousands at the first opportunity to do so without getting killed.

In fact, western diplomatic observers consider it improbable that the Russians would dare to use the satellite forces as front-line troops in any major battle with the western Allied armies.

They would probably be used as occupation and supply troops behind the lines, except in those cases where they could be utilized as cannon fodder without the opportunity to desert.

Bristol Residents Wed At Home of Bride's Parents

The setting for the Manzo-Antonelli wedding here yesterday afternoon was the living-room of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Antonelli, at 327 Wood street. There at the hour of two, their daughter, Miss Mary Antonelli, took the vows which united her in marriage to Mr. Samuel C. Manzo, son of Mrs. Frances Buca, 824 Jefferson avenue. The Rev. Guido Merlo, pastor of the Italian Christian Church, Trenton, N. J., officiated, with Mr. Antonelli giving his daughter in marriage.

A recording of the Lohengrin bridal march was played, with other suitable selections during the ceremony.

The bride was attractive in white, her gown, entrain, having bodice and long, tapered sleeves of lace, and skirt of satin. The gown had a Peter Pan collar. Her face was enhanced with pearls, and from this fell a finger-tip length veil of net. She carried a cascade of calla lilies with a lavender orchid center, it being set off with a bow of white lace and satin.

Her only attendant was Miss Margaret Mocerri, 1109 Beaver street. The bridesmaid was attired in yellow satin, wore a heart-shaped hat of matching satin and yellow slippers. Her cascade was of mixed flowers with lavender bow.

Mr. Louis DiLissio, Beaver street, attended Mr. Manzo as best man. A dinner was served the bridal party at Trenton, N. J., and during the evening there was a reception at the Antonelli residence.

For a week's stay in New York, N. Y., Mrs. Manzo wore a gold-toned suit, toast coat, gold lined hat and gloves, brown cobra slippers and hand-bag, and wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Choice of Mrs. Antonelli for the ceremony was a black print jacket dress and black accessories. Mrs. Buca also wore a black print dress with black accessories. Corsage for each was composed of white roses. The newlyweds will make their home at 824 Jefferson avenue. The bride is a graduate of Bristol high school, class of 1944. Her husband served in the European theatre of operations with the U. S. Army during World War II.

HIBERNIANS MOVE INTO TIE FOR 4TH PLACE

The Hibernians moved into a tie for fourth place in the Bristol Basketball League yesterday afternoon by triumphing over the Franklin A. C. team, 65-54, on the Rohm and Haas floor.

In the other scheduled game, the Profy team received a forfeit from the Fifth Ward Sporting Club, the latter failing to have five eligible players for the game.

The Hibs-Franklin affair was more closely played than the score indicates. The tilt was tied up on seven different occasions and it wasn't until "Bill" Burr broke a 52-52 tie that the Hibs began to float to the victory.

Outstanding in the Hibs' victory were "Bill" McGerr, Charlie Simmons and Bill Burr. McGerr basketed 19 points on nine fielders and a foul, while Simmons connected for eight double-deckers and two fouls for 18 points. Besides scoring 10 points, Burr set up most of the Hibs' plays.

The Corson street aggregation had control of the boards most of the contest while little "Howie" Keys was doing fine work on the boards for Franklin. Keys also contributed 17 points and "Rabbit" Palumbo had 12.

The Profy and Fifth Ward teams played an exhibition contest with Profy's winning by an 82-47 count. Joe Pindar scored 32 points for the winners. The points will not count in the official averages for the season. Saddle Caro had 13 points for Fifth Ward.

The next games of the league will be played Wednesday night on the Rohm and Haas floor. The Luciano team is scheduled to play Profy's for the league leadership while the Hibernians will battle the Franklin team for third place.

DART TEAMS BATTLE FOR LEAGUE LEAD

With but two weeks remaining in the Clubmen's Association Dart League, the battle for first place has narrowed to two teams—Loyal Order of Moose, and the Mutual Aid Society. The Veterans of Foreign Wars were virtually eliminated last week as they lost three games to each of the two leaders. The Moose and Mutual Aid have begun to open up their big guns as they both are making frequent game scores of 200 or better. It appears that all players on these two teams are averaging around the 40 mark each game, and often the failure of one player to maintain this 40 average spells defeat for his team. The Mutual Aid scored a 283 game to post the highest single game score of this season.

At a recent captain's meeting it was decided to award four prizes to the leading teams of the league. A large trophy will be given to the regular season winner and also one to the playoff winner. A plaque will be given to each of the runners-up in the playoffs.

Another meeting of the captains will be held in the near future to discuss the playoffs and the banquet.

Schedule for Week of Feb. 19
MONDAY—Clinton J. Lewis Lodge vs. Loyal Order of Moose.
TUESDAY—Clinton J. Lewis Lodge vs. Veterans of Foreign Wars.

GAME CANCELLED

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Feb. 19

John Slaven, athletic director of Bensalem Township high school, announced last night that the Bensalem-Lower Moreland high school basketball game has been cancelled because the schools of the Huntingdon Valley district are closed today. Reports state that a slight "flu" epidemic has closed the schools. The cancellation followed Lower Moreland's acceptance on Saturday to play the game tonight instead of the original date of tomorrow night. Because of the lateness of the season, it is not believed that the game will be re-scheduled.

ANCHOR YACHT CLUB TO MEET

A special meeting of members of the Anchor Yacht Club will be held tonight at 7:30. Important and urgent business is to be transacted.
